

Who am I?

Across

3. The biggest rodent on Earth. Semi-aquatic mammals from north and central South America. They're closely related to guinea pigs
8. capable of reaching 23 feet or more in length and weighing up to 200 pounds with a girth as big as a telephone pole. One of the largest snakes in the world. Native to South-East Asia
10. An excellent architect, native to North America. Spends most of its life building dams. A very busy animal!
12. Has large ears that can reach 4 to 6 inches in length. The world's smallest fox
13. These giants can reach 7 feet in height (at the hump) and weigh up to 1500 pounds. They are specially adapted to the life in desert. They store fat in their humps.
14. Diet consists of a particular type of shrimp that turns them pink. Famed for standing on one leg
15. Large animals has a prehensile tail and smells like popcorn
17. Omnivore from the desert. Members of the mongoose family. A group of these adorable critters is called a mob.
18. monogamous animal with bright green feathers and black cheeks
19. found in coastal areas, grasslands and tundra all around the Arctic. This bird was made famous by Harry Potter.
20. A species of heron; they are mainly covered in white feathers and have a yellow beak. In Africa, they can be found in breeding groups of up to 10,000 pairs.

Down

1. a small animal related to the kangaroo. the female has a pouch in which she rears and cares for her young for the first five to six months of their lives.
2. Noisy rainbow coloured birds native to Australia. Live in large groups.
4. lives a solitary life and travels from tree to tree using canopy vines. There are 6 different species of this slow animal.
5. Covered in white and black spines. Famed for being prickly. Omnivore from sub-Saharan Africa
6. Large animal with bad eyesight. Eats thousands of termites every day. Can fight off a jaguar.
7. Herbivore found in the Himalayas. Slightly larger than a domestic cat with a bear-like body and thick russet fur.
9. The largest kingfisher in the world, it is brown and white in colour and well known for its laughing call. Native to Australia
11. Belongs to the raccoon family. Has a long snout and striped tail. Native to South America. have between two and seven young at a time.
16. tiny rodent like animal is closely related to the elephant